Space & Production Runner	Providing support for a specific thread or floor theme - the runners will assist and help the dedicated Space Wranglers with the facilitation of the running of the floor and practical help for any and all needs. Main interface between the Wranglers and the Festival organisers. Cab rank in Volunteer's room.
Info Guru	Look after the Info Desks on most floors. Founts of all knowledge and know what is going on, where, and when, including lunch but with in-depth knowledge about the goings-on on their floor. First point of contact for attendees looking for information. Holder of the radio of power and clipboard of knowledge AKA schedule. Point of contact for supply requests and runner requests
Mascot Team	Walking photo opportunity. "Team" as the person in the fox suit needs a buddy or two to help them get suited and unsuited as well as assistance in getting around the venue safely.
Catering Team	Assisting on-site catering team, with crowd control at lunch. Managers of afternoon sugar rush by setting out desserts in the afternoon.

Audiovisual Tech	Helping with Audiovisual equipment set up on the Friday, setting up science fair, helping with the scheduling live feed in rooms, setting up laptops and A/V on each floor, assisting at the tech help desk, set up the closing demo on Sunday night.
Welcome Desk	Greeting people as they arrive and assisting with check-in - setting up the Welcome Desk, working in pairs registering people and handing out lanyards. Answering questions about the festival and with a big friendly face as the first point of contact for the festival.
Press Corps	Helping with press launch (?) before event and running Press Room during. Also curating social media stream via @MozillaFestival.

Participation Guidelines

(derived from Mozilla Festival Participation Guidelines which itself is derived from the Mozilla Community Participation Guidelines)

"The Mozilla Festival respects Mozilla's community participation guidelines. These guidelines cover our behaviour as participants, facilitators, space wranglers, staff, volunteers, vendors, and anyone else involved in making MozFest possible."

- Be respectful and welcoming
- Try to understand different perspectives
- Do not threaten violence
- Empower others
- Strive for excellence
- Don't expect to agree with every decision

Are you seeing behaviour that doesn't respect these guidelines? Email festival@mozilla.org

Any questions????
